

to prevent any immovable property dealt with in liquidations under the Alien Enemies (Winding up) Ordinances, 1914 to 1917, from coming under the control of former enemies, restrictions on banking business, and the prohibition against the employment of former enemy aliens on British ships registered in the Colony.

2. The English Act dealt also with another matter, i.e., the restriction on dealings in non-ferrous metals. We had similar legislation in this Colony, i.e., Ordinances Nos. 1 of 1919 and 4 of 1920, but those Ordinances were repealed by Ordinance No. 11 of 1921.

J. H. KEMP,
Attorney General.
