VICTORIA, WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 1978, 1816

The P. and O. Company's steam vessel Lady Mary Wood" will sail at daylight on the 28th. See advertisement in the first column. the 28th.

Rear Admiral Inglefield, at present Com-Rear Admiral Inglefi-ld, at present Com-mander-invehiciton the South American station is to relieve Rear Admiral Sir Thomas Co-chrane. The "Vernon," 50 gun friggle will bring the new Commander-in Chief hie, but it is imagined a line of Battle slap will be sent out to him as his Flag ship. 2romotions in squadron. F. B. Qum, Semor mate of H. M. S. "Ro-ynlist" to be Lieutenant. Lesutemant Gordon late H. M. S. "Young Lebe" to command "Royalist" vice Reid ap-pointed to "Agincourt."

A general court martial assembled on board H. M. S. "Dædalus" on August 6th 1846 off Malcodoo Bay Borneo, for the trial of Mr. Jin Kennaway Sincoe, mid-shipman of H. M. S. "Agincourt, on two charges; firstly disobedience of orders; and secondly misconduct when in charge of a Boat in the Bruui river, (Borneo) on or about the 8th of July. President, William. Hope Johnstone, Capiam. H. M. S. "Agincourt," members of the court Peter McQuhae, Capt. H. M. S. "Ins," Sir William Hoste, Baronet, Commander H. M. S. "Agincourt," James Caldwell, Commander H. M. S. "Agincourt." On the first charge the prisoner was declared not guilty, and the second charge not being proved, the prisoner was therefore acquitted.

On Saturday three Sepoys going from Hong-kong to Chekchoo, were attacked by a party of Chinese robbers, plundered, and ill-used. One of them died in the Military Hospital on Sunday evening, and both of the others are wounded. No trace of the robbers has yet been discovered.—Hongkong Register, Augt. 18.

From he order for provisions and warlike stores obtained from the Company's arsenal it was surmissed that their distination was Borneo, and it appeared in orders a few hours before sailing. The squadron stried at night, made all sail carrying a heavy press of canvax hight and day, was joined by the Hazard on the 25rd and the 24th of June saw them off the Sarawak. The Admiral went in the Steames up the Sarawak, took Mr. Brooks on board, and instantly pushed for for the River Brain, off which the squadron cost anchor on, the 6th of July. The Sultan immediately forwarded despatch to the Admiral by a war Conce, but it was evident that he was merely gaining time and his proposals were not accepted. At daylight on the 1th the Admiral by a war Conce, but it was evident that he was merely gaining time and his proposals were not accepted. At dayligh on the 1th the Admiral by a mar Conce, but it was evident that he was merely gaining time and his proposals were not accepted. At dayligh on the 1th the Admiral by a far rangement. The Marines and S. A men were ordered on board the Phlegethon. The Royalist was taken in two by the Spiteful, and the Phlegethon, and the ships procueded by the River, the small resement sounding 200 y inds a heed of the Apiteful.

Flag, and cooly awaited the rapid approa-the Steamers, and when within good commenced firing. The Phlegothon's Pivot and the Field and Rocket Battery, immedia. commenced firing. The Phlegethon's Pivot and the Field and Rocket Battery, immedia; a turned it with a rapid and well direced fire, Pau by the Gun Boats as they showed off and opened out in view of the Forts. The Enemy's fire was budy directed, and the Shot, Grape &c. went in every direction but the true one; and the rapid closing of the Spiteful sent them flying from their guns and the standards that winds to consistent with the spite of the spite full sent them flying from their guns and the rapid closing. The guns hoats were ordered to crity the Forts, firing ceased on both sides and, so well and nimbly did the foe desert their standards that when the first invades was on the Panapeth e could cally manage to have a long stow with a Pist lat the last of the conquered. The Forts above the Toun behaved better; as the Phlegethon rounded the pand and appeared in view they commenced firing, with great accuracy at 900 yards. The Field Battery and the Guns of the Phlegethon returned it with success, and the rapid closing of the other vessels to take part in the, action drove them, from their guns with itses of the British sade on board the Phlegethon these of the British sade on board the Phlegethon deserves great credit for the able minner the water on both sides of her was ploughed up in every direction, and the commander of the Phlegethon deserves great credit for the able minner he handled het mater fire.

carried away before the Seamen and Marines took possession.

Humbled by defeat, powerless through desertion, a fugitive from his Capital and people "Omar Ali Safadeen" attended by a few of his nobles took relige from the British forces in the impenetrable jungle of the interior,—nor did he stay his wretched flight till a hundred miles, and dense forests were placed between him and his porrevering foo,—who without correct intelligence, ignorant of the contry, and trusting to doubtful guides, foodly believed that a march and a day would surprise and capture the royal deserter.—It was determined by the Admiral without loss of time to follow up the tide of success, and the next day a marching column of 400 men Commanded by Captin Mandy, having under his orders, Lieutenants Newland, Matthews, Patey, Heath, Norcock, Morgan, Captain Hawkins R. M. Einemants Alexander and Mansell R. M. started with the aidenties on of the Sultan) first,—and by a forced march afterwards suddenly appear before the Sultan's house ore he had timely notice of their situation,—but the guides willing enough to surrender to the English the persons of their subtles, were not sufficiently bag to botray their soccreage,—money our threats, present advantages or future prospects had not yet: the unlettered savage, taugit him the terrible crime of foul treason to his country and tracherry to a fallen King;—the main object of the expedition theorems and the subtless of the person, burnt the energy hourst the suppositions residences of royalty, captured six Brass Grues, and after four days marching in heavy main through plains covered as far as the eye could reach with water, and through, jougle so thick as to affard an effectual series of the preson, and not a death wound, because the country and tracherry to a fallen King;—the main object of the expedition the country and tracherry to a fallen signal with the war cannot be breast and the second of the product of

In a failen loe, Unable as the Admiral was to communicate act with the Sultan, yet the serious inconvenencies attending a total absence of all Government, forced him to accelerate, the great object of his policy by an appeal to the well disposed of the nobles, and aware that the ruler over the country united in his person the twofold chiarquer of Saverigin and Priest, and that the people had a ranted conviction of the propriety of shouldes submission to the will of the reigning despot, he wisely forthere to insist on Omars addication, but stremously exerted himself to overshadow his temporal domination by a complete and total change in the administration of his Government. Summening to a confergence the Pangerans of the British party on the deck of the Npileful, he explained to them his wishes placed their effairs before them in a clear and foreible hight, urged them to rise and be the leaders of their countrymen in the paths of peace, and to resist as minous to their autimal presperity the herrithe trade of Shavery and Piracy, and valled upon them bod liy to denounce in their public conferences, and treat as rebels and traitors, the trious ruffians who from henceforth upshed it. He promised them British protection and naval assistance in carrying out the object of his mission, but he told them also in language too clear to be missinterpreted by the designing, his determination to resist to the uttermest any infraction of the treaty, and threatened to carry fire and sword into the heart of the Empire if their solemn declarations only shielded the infamy of a national fishehood. They answered him with feeling, and let us trust with good faith, promised that though they could not as good subjects dethrane. "Omar Ali," yet they would sarchife their lives ore they would allow the Sultan to diagrace the nation by violating its honorable organoment, and called upon Permorment to assume with their full concurrence the reins of Government, requesting him to call to his assistance any of the assembled leaders. Penmormeni accepted with modesty the hunorable his second in mak and promised to forward ere night full a full a possession of his throne, supported by the British party.

The first act of Pennormein's ministry was to bring to trial and death, three of the captured leaders who commanded the Forts that fired upon the English; they were creased over the grave of the mardered Buddradeen whose assassination they had been instrumental in a complishing.

Interfering as seriously in the national councils as we have done, acound prudence domands that England should assist the efforts of the Bornean Kingdom in her march of improvement, and as sach as destroyed by force her powers of committing evil, heal by a generous interest in her welfare the divisions of her Rulers, and if the minister odly pursues with honesty and firmness the policy so clearly laid down for him, Europe may yet acknowledge the northen portion of Borne entitled to in importance, and assuming a position, that half a century earlier would have been deemed impossible.

sible. Every thing having been arranged between the Admiral and the Government, to the satisfaction of both patties the Spiteful and Philogethon steamed down the river and joined the squadron off Muoria Point on the 22nd, and the Fleet shoot to sea at daylight on the 23nd of July for Maluda Bay, leaving the Hazard off the Bruni Trict.

Mr. B., sathé alory, goes geve the assection a fast denial, in langings reary plan, and, seceedingly pointed and offensive, where upon Mr. R., inflicted summary punithment upon his friend with his sight foot. Mr. B. struck Mr. R. in return, with his fist; and then a mutual friend, Mr. L., interfered, separated the belligerents, and put an end to all further hostilities. Another set of parties deny that any lick was given or any blows struck, but state that Mr. R.'s observation was considered to very offensive by Mr. B., that the latter raised his hand in a threatening thanner, and would, in all probability, have struck but for the prompt interference of other gentlemen in the room. In which ever way the affirm were conducted, one thing appears pretty certain, that it accided the altention and sharm of every one present, and that if was deemed most advisable to call an immediate meeting of the committee, with the view of investigating the circumstances, and singleng measures to prevent hostilities from being carried further. The cummattee met in ten minutes afterwards, but, of course, there produced the meeting at twee very conservation in the Exchange Newstoom, madements the Underwriter's-toom, and amongs: the merchants or Change, and then it was carried on a hundred tongues to all quarters of the town. GROSS OUTRAGE AT GALLE BY LERT JERVIS R. A.

Sir.—I deem it necessary to make publicly known the following statement of the unwarrantable, and grossly insulting conduct of Lieut. H. Jervis, Royal Artillary towards a lady he had newer been introduced to, met in society, or exchanged a word with in his life—Unwilling at all times to obtrade my private affairs upon the public, I bell reluctantify compelled to do so upon the present occasion to contradict files reports which have been circulated, and under the advice of friends I publish Lieut. Jervis letter to the hady in question, and his application of the public of the same.

On Sunday murning the l4th June, on leaving my Bed room I found a note addressed to my wife lying on my desk—I placed it in her hands, which note having been perused with much indignation, lwas returned to me with her remark that it was my affair to deal with the treark that it was my affair to deal with the state of the wife of true when I read as a faciliation of the way as facilished when you treerify.

The original note sent by Lieut. Jervis was then unfortunately destroyed, Captain Wingfield telling me that he considered it ought to be done, and objecting to my pastposing the affair to consult any friend, as he thought it should be a "migrated before I left the house-agitated by the coentrences, and half supified with the blows I had general or one of the allowing the affair to consult any friend, as he thought it should be a "migrated before I left the house-agitated by the coentrences, and half supified with the blows I had general to the destruction of the letter and accepting of the apology, which in a more collected state I should not have done—During the day having hald the whole before two friends, they both agreed that I had acted most unadvisedly in consenting to the destruction of the original letter—and they thought it essentially necessary that I should seek restress or an apology for the blows with Lieut. Jervis had given to me, as they considered it most diagraceful of any one under the circumstances to strike a man be had endeavoured to injure in the most deadly manner practicable, particularly as not one word was, said about the blows (which I purposely desisted from hyving mixed up with the offensive letter in the spology) nor was it mentioned by either side. I therefore wrotes a formal complaint to Major Bonor the Commandant which was delayed to be sent until about 8 o'clock in the evening as I had permitted a communication to be made to Lieut. Jervis, through Captain Wingfield have suggested that a Superior Officer of Lieut. Jervis and yound not be the bearer of any reply, informing him of the course intended to be preused unless he apologiced for the blows—Captain Wingfield have suggested that a Superior Officer of Lieut. Jervis handly, Captain Maberly, was in Galle I delayed also sending in the complaint to util I had seen him—which was at a late hour—he bowever refused taking any notice of it—Hawing received a letter from the Commandant to the e attend at his house at 10 o'clock the following morning, I waited upon him at that hour. After going through the charge and counter-statement the Commandant refused to defain Lieut. Lernis

I then proceeded to the Pulice Office, it was about half past 14 o'clock and the Magistrate not being there I wrote to him to know if he was comping to the Court, or if I should go to his residence? About half an hour afterwards (12 o'clock) the Magistrate made his appearance, and having taken my despositions. I heard him desire a warrant to be made out for Lieut. Jervis, and summons for the winesses—These were placed in the hands of the Inspector of Police, and on his return at 3 o'clock without the accessed party, he stated that having searched the steamer (on board of which Lieut. Jervis had taken his passage for England), from stem to stern with the exception of the ladies cabin and Engine Room, he had not succeeded in finding Lieut. Jervis there or on shore.

I found to my astonishment that a nummon, instead of a warrant had been issued for Lieut. Jervis-upon my complaining of this the Magistrate then issued a warrant and the Inspector proceeded again on Board the Steamer—at 4 o,clock the Magistrate rose—I then went myself on Board—the Laspector with others assisting, having searched every place with the exception of those before named I let the ships as he was getting onder way without having found Lieut. Jervis went on board about 1 o'clock and told the Cappain that warrant had been issued against him and requested-to be concealed in the ship—upon the refusal of the Captain was certain he had not retuned by the gang-way, except he did so thno' some disguise.

Here it will be as well to observe that Lieut. Jervis went on board about 1 o'clock and told the Cappain in a warrant had been issued to he had not retuned by the gang-way, except he did so thno' some disguise.

Here it will be as well to observe that Lieut. Jervis received every assistance both from Mil'tary and Cirulians to enable him to edue an enquire into th

EXPORTS.

Sugar.—Our Market maintains the same disadvantageous position of last week regarding this article, and we are therefore obliged to give the same report, viz.—The article may be considered in nomized demand, want of tonouge-being the principal cause that p events now purchases. We have seldom known such scarcity of vessels, and this again produces a complete stagnation in the export trade, increasing the stocks on hand to a great extent, making money searce and obstructing the circulation of business in general.

The produce ready for shipment, for Europe and the United States, in Sigar, Hemp and Sapnanwood alone, amounts to more the 12,000 tons.

Hymp, no arrivals.—Some sales have been made to arrive, within our quotations, per picul screwed. Rice.—Totally neglected for China, and in demand for the southern provinces.

Segars.—We understand that they are to be sold at auction for the future, that few are yet ready made and that it is uncertain when the first auction will take place. Report says at the end of next month.
